Based in Genoa, the renowned Italian shipyard Tankoa Yachts has decided to take the world by storm with a new incredible superyacht project. Simply called Open, this concept is a 58-meter wonder, coming straight from the drawing board of Francesco Paszkowski and his design studio, who worked closely with the team from Tankoa Yachts.

Apart from the super sleek exterior, what's really interesting about this open vessel concept is that the shipyard will build both the hull and superstructure entirely from light alloy 5083, which means this superyacht will be extremely light and pretty fast as well.

Powered by three MTU engines, the Open superyacht is bound to show off some incredible refinements and bespoke amenities inside, that will be probably discussed with the eventual owner of this beauty, to deliver ultimate comfort and a luxurious cruising experience.

Tankoa Yachts' newest vessel is set to be a game changer, an open superyacht which offers plenty of space outside, that's going to be fast, comfortable and seductive. We're sure some millionaire out there is already planning to turn this concept into reality.
